Brera Design District is the most important promotional district for design in Italy, an international reference point, and the creative and commercial development centre of Milan.

Historically an art district thriving around the Accademia di Belle Arti, which asserts itself today as the main cultural and commercial district of the city thanks to the presence of more than 100 permanent showrooms and art galleries.

Brera Design District through the years has consolidated its role as mediator and propeller for these realities, creating a capillary convergence system through a dedicated communication plan.

The suggestive and unique locations of the district represent an ideal window for the promotion of design – particularly during Design Week, but also for the year round, involving brands and professionals as well as investors, sponsors and temporary exhibitors.
Brera Design District was built with the aim of creating an organized network enclosing the area's realities, promoting commercial and cultural activities through a leading-edge development plan.

Year by year Brera Design District, with its packed event schedule, implements the cultural, economic and social heritage that distinguishes the district. By sharing skills and resources among professionals, the set aim is to spread and promote design culture in the fields of product design, architecture and art, blending tradition and innovation.
The Brera Design District project currently features four projects coordinated in different fields, from territorial development to consultancy. There are two main yearly events that wholly fulfil the project’s expression: the Design Week in April and the Design Days (during Design City Milano) in October. The other two coordinated formats are the consultancy platform Design Locations and the Design Apartment showroom.

Brera Design District in 2014 launched the Design Lessons Award. This prize is awarded to those who, with their work or activity, distinguish themselves in the field of design in Italy or abroad. The winner’s experience becomes an example, a global design lesson, should it contribute to spread design culture according to the principles promoted and shared by Brera Design District. The prize has a symbolic value and it’s awarded during the Design Week and communicated with BDD’s platform and communication tools. BDD launched the award with a double aim, to account a successful case history as an incentive and encouragement for satellite activities and to avail itself of an “ambassador” who will be both the district representative during the event and the annual spokesman of the district’s shared values.

Communication Tools
Online / Website

The structure of the website follows a consolidated template that brings to the foreground the main projects and an interactive district map enclosing all the active points and the various exhibits, showrooms and brands.

The objective is to immediately direct the user’s attention to the project’s fundamental points, meaning the event calendar with its focus on special events (location, main sponsor, sponsor, plus). It is important to point out that every Brera Design District event has its dedicated page, which will remain online.

Communication Tools
Online / Social media

Day-by-day by Brera Design District has broadened its communication tools offer. Social media are ever more a marketing tool capable of reaching a very vast audience and a reference target. Since 2016 Brera Design District has strongly focused on the role of social media, particularly on its official Facebook and Instagram pages as tools to communicate the district’s events and activities. This year, Brera Design District, through the use of Instagram and of the hashtag #breradesigndistrict created a new visual memory of the Fuorisalone, an image container destined to grow from year to year.

Facebook: 16k fan
Instagram: 32k follower
The Brera Design District newsletter is another fundamental tool of the communication plan. Addressed to more than 30,000 profiled contacts, the newsletter is the ideal promotion and communication reference for all district news and activities. Mainsponsors and sponsors can co-plan the release of articles and editorials to launch events, products and services.
Communication Tools

Neighborhood / Info point, signage totem, banners

Of fundamental importance is the role of the Info Points. Situated in strategic locations, Largo Treves, Eataly Largo La Foppa, in 2017, to receive and inform the thousands of visitors that animate the city streets looking for innovation and quality experiences. The Info Point service was created for the 2014 edition by C.M.C.2.0.

Neighborhood /
Info point, signage totem, banners

In addition to the Info Points, a line of flags signalling the main roads and delimiting the district borders is also provided. Exhibitors will have a banner stand in correspondence to the showroom and exhibition space signalling their presence to the visitors.
Communication Tools
Event guide and map

The event guide and the Brera Design District map are the main orientation tools for the district; one of the most used during Design week. In 2017, 50,000 event guides and maps were printed and distributed both before and during Design Week by the three Info Points and the participating venues.
At its 16th year of activity, Fuorisalone.it is the official platform for design week in Milano. Brera Design Week takes the role of absolute protagonist with its dedicated communication such as:

- focus on the event on the overall website
- event focus on the Fuorisalone.it mobile app
- dedicated articles on Fuorisalone Magazine
With the aim of previewing and promoting Design Week events, Fuorisalone Magazine is part of the Brera Design District communication tools with two formats: Discover and the Guide.

The Discover column foresees the presentation of brief articles functioning as promotion and news of events concerning the world of design.

The Guide article is a new editorial format created specifically for Brera Design District with the aim of creating short themed tours through the showrooms and events in the district.
